ReWFOTel 12/8/64.

MANLIO F. DE ANGELIS, Deputy Budget Director for Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA), and its successors, Mutual Security Agency and Foreign Operations Administration from 1950 to 1954 advised that counterpart funds were handled by ECA missions in the various countries and at a local level prior to 1950. He said the use of those funds by Congressional Committees was authorized either in the original ECA Act or within the following year. These funds were furnished by the local mission to members of Congress when requested and no accounting as to the use was required by ECA. Section 1415 of the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1953, placed more restrictions on the use of local currency, including counterpart funds, however, no detailed accounting by congressmen required. DE ANGELIS served in Athens, Greece, prior to 1950, and said no detailed records required there for use of local currency, including counterpart funds. He had no knowledge of any records relative to counterpart funds used by congressmen during that period and is sure if any record is located, it will show total amounts disbursed only.

BOYD CRAWFORD, Staff Administrator, House Committee on Foreign Affairs, advised MIKE MANSFIELD, then a Representative, was on survey of political and economic developments during fall of 1949 in France, western Germany, Austria, and Italy. CRAWFORD was with the Committee at that time and knows that a financial accounting was made in full to the chairman. After the accounting and convincing the chairman the policy was to destroy the report. CRAWFORD said receipts were required to substantiate report. He said personal expenditures of counterpart funds encouraged, however, on return from trip expenditures totaled and personal check sent to U. S. Treasury.

IRREGULAR USE OF COUNTERPART FUNDS
[REDACTED] COMPLAINANT
FRAUD AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT

The following information has been developed by this Bureau concerning the allegation of [REDACTED] that in 1949 the then Congressman Michael J. Mansfield, while on a trip to Europe, used counterpart funds to purchase various articles, including a statue known as "Dawn." The Criminal Division of the Department of Justice on December 7, 1964, requested this Bureau to review appropriate records concerning disbursement of counterpart funds with respect to this matter and that the results be furnished to the Department of Justice for a determination as to whether further investigation should be conducted.

Mr. Manlio F. DeAngelis, Deputy Budget Director for the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) and its successors, Mutual Security Agency and Foreign Operations Administration, advised that counterpart funds were handled by ECA missions in various foreign countries prior to 1950. These funds were furnished by ECA missions to members of Congress when requested and an accounting as to the use of the funds was not required by ECA. Mr. DeAngelis said he has no knowledge of any records relative to counterpart funds used by Congressmen prior to 1954 and is sure if any record is available, it will show only the total amount of counterpart funds disbursed.

Mr. Boyd Crawford, Staff Administrator, Committee on Foreign Affairs, United States House of Representatives, advised that he has been with this Committee since 1939 and remembers the trip the then Congressman Michael J. Mansfield made to Europe in the Fall of 1949 as a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. He recalled that Mr. Mansfield was required by the Committee Chairman, the late John Kee, to CWL:eem      NOTE: This is being submitted to advise the Acting Attorney General as to results of our investigation, requested by the Department, of allegations made by [REDACTED] that Senator Mansfield (D.-Mont.) when a Congressman in 1949, misused counterpart funds. The White House is also being advised.

give very valid reasons as to the necessity for the trip and that Mr. Mansfield filed a 23-page report on December 10, 1949, relative to his trip to France, West Germany, Austria and Italy in the Fall of 1949.

The Committee Chairman was very strict about authorizing trips, according to Mr. Crawford, and required each member who traveled to furnish a financial accounting, including receipts, relative to the use of counterpart funds. It was also necessary for each member to reimburse the United States Treasury by personal check for personal expenditures from counterpart funds. The reports submitted to the Committee Chairman in 1949 were retained for a reasonable period and have since been destroyed.

Inasmuch as this Bureau was requested only to review appropriate records concerning the disbursement of counterpart funds with respect to this matter, no additional investigation is being conducted at this time pending receipt from the Criminal Division of a request that additional investigation be conducted.

IRREGULAR USE OF COUNTERPART FUNDS
b7C   COMPLAINANT

Boyd Crawford, Staff Administrator, Committee on Foreign Affairs, United States House of Representatives, on December 10, 1964, stated he has been with that committee since 1939. Crawford remembered very well the trip to Europe in the fall of 1949, which was taken by the Honorable Michael J. Mansfield, then a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. He recalled that Mansfield was required by the committee chairman, the late John Kee of West Virginia, to give very valid reasons for the necessity for the trip. Mansfield filed a twenty-three page report on December 10, 1949, relative to his trip to France, western Germany, Austria, and Italy in the fall of 1949.

Crawford stated that Kee was very strict about authorizing trips and required every committee member who traveled to furnish financial accounting, including receipts, relative to the use of counterpart funds or any other United States Government funds. The reports were retained for a reasonable period and then destroyed. Reports for the past five or six years are retained at present.

According to Crawford, personal expenditures out of counterpart funds were encouraged by Kee, however, it was necessary for the committee member to make an accounting of such expenditures and to reimburse the United States Treasury by personal check. This was valuable to the United States inasmuch as it served to convert local currency abroad, which could only be spent abroad, into the equivalent in United States currency which could be used in this country.

b7C   Financial Analysis, Foreign Currency Branch, Accounts Division, Agency for International Development, said on December 11, 1964, that prior to 1953, counterpart funds and some other local currency funds were disbursed through the agency to which they had accrued, namely the Economic Cooperation Administration or its successors, the Mutual Security Agency and the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA). In 1953, the disbursement was changed and began to be handled through the Disbursing Officer in the American Embassy in the five countries involved. The following year the vouchers which had accumulated in the FOA missions in the five countries were sent en masse to the United States and were retired to the Federal Records Center, Alexandria, Virginia. The vouchers were not broken down into types of disbursement and many are multiple and show a number of disbursements. [redacted] said the only way to determine how much was drawn by any Congressman would be to go through all of the vouchers for the period involved, and, in this instance, for all four countries in which travel was performed. He said he felt this would be a tremendous task and believed it would involve locating and reviewing approximately 10,000 vouchers.

In view of the burdensome task of reviewing these records and the possibility of unproductive results, it is believed that an interview with Senator Mansfield would, in this instance, be expedient. Advice is requested as to whether an interview with the Senator should be conducted.

Enclosed is revised page 2 of letterhead memorandum. For your information, the letterhead memorandum as revised at the Bureau is being furnished to the Criminal Division with the advice that inasmuch as this Bureau was requested only to review appropriate records concerning disbursement of counterpart funds, no additional investigation is being conducted at this time pending receipt from the Criminal Division of a request that additional investigation be conducted. This appears to be desirable since the Department, upon making request for investigation, indicated it desired to make the determination as to whether further investigation is necessary.

Dear Mr. Moyers:

b7C

The following information may be of interest to the President concerning an allegation of [redacted] that in 1949 the then Congressman Michael J. Mansfield, while on a trip to Europe, used counterpart funds to purchase various articles, including a statue known as "Dawn." The Criminal Division of the Department of Justice on December 7, 1964, requested this Bureau to review appropriate records concerning disbursement of counterpart funds with respect to this matter and that the results be furnished to the Department of Justice for a determination as to whether further investigation should be conducted. 46-151483-11

Mr. Manlio F. DeAngelis, Deputy Budget Director for the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) and its successors, Mutual Security Agency and Foreign Operations Administration, advised that counterpart funds were handled by ECA missions in various foreign countries prior to 1950. These funds were furnished by ECA missions to members of Congress when requested and an accounting as to the use of the funds was not required by ECA. Mr. DeAngelis said he has no knowledge of any records relative to counterpart funds used by Congressmen prior to 1954 and is sure if any record is available, it will show only the total amount of counterpart funds disbursed. K4 remembers the trip the then Congressman Michael J. Mansfield made to Europe in the Fall of 1949 as a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. He recalled that Mr. Mansfield was required by the Committee Chairman, the late John Kee, to give very valid reasons as to the necessity for the trip and that Mr. Mansfield filed a twenty-three-page report on December 10, 1949, relative to his trip to France, West Germany, Austria and Italy in the Fall of 1949.

MANLIO F. DE ANGELIS, former Deputy Budget Director for Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) and its successors from 1950 to 1954, advised counterpart funds handled by ECA missions in various countries at local level prior to 1950. He said use of such funds by Congressional committees was authorized in original act establishing ECA in 1948 or within the year. [redacted] Accounts Division, Agency for International Development, said that in 1954 vouchers for Foreign Operations Administration missions abroad and its predecessors, including ECA, were sent en masse to Washington, D.C., and retired. He felt review would be tremendous task. BOYD CRAWFORD, Staff Administrator, U.S. House Committee on Foreign Affairs, said MANSFIELD was required to justify trip to Europe in 1949 and all members of committee were required to give chairman detailed accounting, including receipts, relative to use of counterpart and other U.S. funds.

MANLIO F. DeANGELIS, Deputy Assistant Administrator, Regional Use AID for Africa, Bureau for Africa of Agency for International Development (AID), Room 802, State Annex #1, 401 Twenty-third Street, N. W., advised that in September, 1947, he was named a Special Assistant in the Office of Mission Chief, American Mission for Aid to Greece (AMAG), Athens, Greece. At that time, a small portion of United States foreign assistance took the form of commodities imported for resale within the aid receiving country. The recipient country was usually called upon to make available to the Mission as "counterpart funds," the proceeds of resale accruing to it. The counterpart funds were divided into two portions; the "country-use" portion then constituting about 95 percent of the total funds, the balance in the "U.S.-use" portion. The country-use counterpart was spent within the recipient country for carrying out U. S. foreign policy objectives such as carrying out development projects. The U.S.-use counterpart was deposited in local currency with the Mission for use of the Mission itself. When the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) was set up in April, 1948, it replaced AMAG in Greece and established Missions in other countries. The legislation establishing ECA set out a provision for five percent for U.S.-use counterpart, however, this was soon changed to ten percent.

DeANGELIS said that originally counterpart funds were used for operation of the Mission within the country, however, surplus funds were available and these were used to buy equipment for missions in other countries where available. He said that, either in the original act establishing ECA or within the year, members of Congressional Committees were authorized to use these funds. Later the United States Information Agency began using the funds with authority of Congress and then other U. S. Government Agencies received authority to use them and not have these sums charged against their appropriations.

Inasmuch as the use of the fund was becoming complicated, a section was set up in E.C.A. in Washington, D. C., in September, 1950, to handle it from the standpoint of authorization for use and DeANGELIS became the Deputy Budget Director for E. C. A. He served in this capacity for the successor organizations, Mutual Security Agency (MSA) and Foreign Operations Administration (FOA) until 1954. During this period there were no provisions for a review or audit by ECA, MSA or FOA of funds used by members of Congressional Committees and DeANGELIS said he thought there was no review by Congress. He said the Congressmen did have to sign for counterpart funds obtained.

With the passage of Section 1415 of the Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1953, control of local currency, which included counterpart funds, was placed under the jurisdiction of the United States Treasury and disbursement was through the Disbursing Officer of the American Embassy located in that country.

DeANGELIS said [redacted] who is presently b7C assigned to the Budget Division of AID, worked within his section and would possibly know the whereabouts of any reports received from the foreign missions.

DeANGELIS advised he had no knowledge of any records relative to counterpart funds used by Congressmen during the period in question and is sure if any record is located it will show total amounts disbursed only.

[redacted] Funds Control Staff, Budget Division, Agency for International Development (AID), Room 2884, New State Department Building, advised that she began employment in the Budget Division of the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) in June, 1951. As she remembered the situation, the Budget Division took over control of counterpart funds, from the standpoint of authorization, in 1952 and at that time, members of Congressional committees were authorized to use the funds during travel. The ECA Missions handled actual disbursement, were required to get receipts signed whenever funds were disbursed but were not required to make an accounting to the ECA headquarters in Washington.

As she recalled, the Congressmen had to account only to their committees. [redacted] said the Accounting Division of ECA in Washington received monthly composite reports of disbursements from the Regional Office in Paris, France, together with individual reports from each of the other Missions. To the best of her memory, [redacted] were in summary form and did not show detail. She said [redacted] of the Foreign Currency Branch of the Accounts Division, AID, should know more about records as that group received them.

[redacted] feels this would be a tremendous task and he believes it would involve locating and reviewing in the neighborhood of 10,000 vouchers. He said he knows nothing of the condition of these vouchers but from seeing records of similar vintage, he has doubts that they are in very good condition.

He said he remembered very well the trip to Europe which was taken in the fall of 1949 by the Honorable MICHAEL J. MANSFIELD, then a member of that Committee. He recalled that MANSFIELD was required by the committee chairman, the late JOHN KEE of West Virginia, to give very valid reasons for the necessity for the trip. CRAWFORD said KEE was very strict about authorizing trips and required every committee member who traveled to furnish a financial accounting, including receipts, relative to the use of counterpart funds or any other United States Government funds during his trip. The reports were received by KEE personally, and when finally approved were retained for a reasonable period and then destroyed. Reports presently on file date back about five or six years.

According to CRAWFORD, personal expenditures out of counterpart funds were encouraged by KEE, however, it was necessary for the committee member to make an accounting of such expenditures and to reimburse the United States Treasury by personal check. This was valuable to the United States inasmuch as it served to convert local currency, which could be spent only in the foreign country in which issued, into the equivalent in United States currency which could be used for government expenses in this country. While CRAWFORD knew of no rule as to how soon after a trip such a personal check need be written, he was sure it would be obtained from the traveler as KEE was unbending in this regard.

Reference is made to my memorandum of December 17, 1964, concerning our investigation in the captioned matter and the request of the Criminal Division of December 29, 1964, that an appropriate interview be conducted with Senator Michael J. Mansfield in this matter.

Senator Mansfield was interviewed on January 5, 1965, and advised that his wife had kept an informal but fairly detailed record of their expenditures while on the trip in Europe in 1949. Senator Mansfield produced this record, a small notebook, for examination and reviewed each entry in the record with the interviewing Agents. This record shows cumulative expenses totaling $2,544.70 for meals, hotels, tips, automobile expenses, souvenirs and other personal expenses during the period September 14, 1949, through October 17, 1949.

Entries appearing on two pages of the record of expenditures indicate that $1,400 worth of traveler's checks had been cashed. An entry also appears which shows that a statue costing $119 had been purchased at Vienna, Austria. Senator Mansfield said that he does not know the name of this statue but feels that it is the one which [redacted] referred to in his allegation. Senator Mansfield further advised that he and his wife both recall that she purchased this statue with her personal funds.

Senator Mansfield said that he and his wife had taken personal cash as well as traveler's checks on the trip to Europe. Due to the lapse of time, he could only estimate the amount of cash as having been at least a few hundred dollars and the amount of traveler's checks as having been a few hundred dollars more than those cashed.

The Acting Attorney General

Senator Mansfield was not certain whether counterpart funds were available in 1949 and the record of his expenditures does not contain any notation as to whether such funds were or were not available. He said that he feels some counterpart funds were available and he feels he would have used such funds to pay for legitimate expenses. Senator Mansfield said, however, that he and his wife are certain that they did not use counterpart funds for personal purchases of any kind while on their trip to Europe in 1949.

No additional investigation is being conducted in this matter in the absence of a specific request from the Department.

NOTE: The initial investigation of this allegation was limited to review of appropriate records in accordance with request of the Criminal Division. No records were found which would show whether counterpart funds had been used by Senator Mansfield while on the European trip. On 12/29/64 Criminal Division requested appropriate interview of Mansfield concerning this matter. The White House is also being advised.

Character: FRAUD AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT

Synopsis:

b7C

Senator MICHAEL J. MANSFIELD advised that [redacted] was his [redacted] during part of a tour of a portion of Europe made by MANSFIELD and his wife in the fall of 1949. During this trip MANSFIELD and his wife maintained an informal but fairly complete record of expenses and travelers checks cashed which he made available for review. MANSFIELD said his wife had purchased a statue, name unknown, on 10/11/49, at Vienna, Austria, and had paid $110 for it from her personal funds. MANSFIELD does not recall if any counterpart funds were used during this trip but said he and his wife are certain no such funds were used for personal purchases.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

1/6/64

Date

United States Senator MICHAEL J. MANSFIELD was interviewed in Room S-208, United States Capitol, by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] and SA [redacted]

[redacted] MANSFIELD stated that he was aware he did not have to furnish any information and that any information he did furnish could be used against him in a court of law. He said he was aware he was entitled to legal counsel if he so desired. Senator MANSFIELD said he had no objection to furnishing information under oath and he was placed under oath by SA [redacted]

MANSFIELD stated that he had been advised a short time before that an investigation was being conducted relative to his use of counterpart funds while he and his wife were on a tour of certain countries in Europe in the fall of 1949. He said he had discussed the matter with his wife and she had pointed out that she thought she had made an informal record of expenses as she usually does this when making a trip. They had made a search of their records and located a small notebook which contained informal but fairly detailed records of their expenses together with other notations relative to the trip. MANSFIELD produced this notebook and went over it page by page, pointing out which notations he had made and which had been made by his wife. He explained them as best he could after pointing out that fifteen years had elapsed since the trip was taken.

By way of background, MANSFIELD stated that the purpose of his trip was to make a survey of political and economic developments in France, Western Germany, Austria and Italy for the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the United States House of Representatives of which he was then a member. Prior to the tour through Europe he had served as a Congressional delegate to a United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) conference in Paris, France. MANSFIELD did not recall how [redacted] had been chosen or designated as his [redacted] however, he did recall that [redacted] arrived in Paris from Austria in his automobile at the conclusion of the UNESCO conference. [redacted] drove

MANSFIELD and his wife on their tour which included Heidelberg and Munich, Germany; Vienna and Salzburg, Austria; Liechtenstein; Zurich, Switzerland; and Florence and Rome, Italy. According to MANSFIELD, [redacted] left him and his wife in Rome and they continued to Paris and then home.

MANSFIELD said that he and his wife had taken a sizeable amount of their personal cash as well as American Express Travelers Checks on the trip. Due to the lapse of time he could only estimate the amount of cash and he felt that it amounted to at least a few hundred dollars. MANSFIELD showed the Special Agents entries in the notebook which indicated that he and his wife had left the United States on September 14, 1949, and the last entry which is dated indicates they were in Rome on October 17, 1949. There were subsequent entries showing expenses en route home but they were not dated. A perusal of the notebook shows that it includes details of cost of meals, hotels, tips, automobile expense, souvenirs and other personal expenses. These expenses are totaled on each page and a running total is carried forward. The grand total reflects that $2,544.70 was spent during the trip and MANSFIELD pointed out that, while it does detail very small expenses, it is possible the total is not absolutely accurate.

There were two pages which listed travelers checks cashed during the trip and it was noted that they reflected that a total of $1,490 were cashed. One entry shows that two $50 travelers checks were cashed in Salzburg and this entry is followed by the notation [redacted] at Salz." The two following entries show that three $50 travelers checks and one $100 travelers check were cashed and they are followed by ditto marks. MANSFIELD did not recall the significance of these notations and did not know if the latter two entries meant that those amounts also had been furnished to [redacted] or whether it merely indicated the checks had also been cashed in Salzburg. He said he felt that part of this money could have been to reimburse [redacted] for automobile expenses as there was only one other small amount shown as an expenditure for gasoline. MANSFIELD said that since his notebook showed that he cashed $1,490 in travelers checks he felt that he had taken at least a few hundred more.

MANSFIELD pointed out one entry in the notebook dated October 11 at Vienna in the amount of $110 for a statue. He said that, while he does not know the name of the statue, he feels certain that it is the one which [redacted] stated he purchased. MANSFIELD says he remembers the statue very well as he personally carried it on many occasions later in the trip to prevent getting it broken. He and his wife both recall that she purchased it with her personal funds. He said they still have the statue and he and his wife recall that when she traveled to Europe the following year without him she returned to the shop where it was purchased and attempted to purchase a similar statue, however, none were available.

MANSFIELD said he does not recall definitely whether counterpart funds had been built up to the point where they were available during this trip and he had no notations indicating that they were or were not used. He said he believed some were available and he feels that he would have used them to pay his hotel expenses and any other legitimate expenses for himself. He said he and his wife are certain no such funds were used for personal purchases of any kind. MANSFIELD could not recall definitely whether or not he had been required to make a financial report on the expenses incurred on his trip to the Committee on Foreign Affairs but he felt that such a report had possibly been made.

The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Moyers:

Reference is made to my memorandum of December 17, 1964, concerning our investigation of an allegation of [redacted] that in 1949 the then Congressman Michael J. Mansfield, while on a trip to Europe, used counterpart funds to purchase various articles including a statue known as "Dawn."

b7C

As a matter of possible further interest to the President, Senator Mansfield was interviewed on January 5, 1965, concerning this allegation in accordance with a request from Assistant Attorney General Herbert J. Miller, Jr., of the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice.

Senator Mansfield advised that his wife had kept an informal but fairly detailed record of their expenditures while on the trip in Europe in 1949. Senator Mansfield produced this record, a small notebook, for examination and reviewed each entry in the record with the interviewing Agents. This record shows cumulative expenses totaling $2,544.70 for meals, hotels, tips, automobile expenses, souvenirs and other personal expenses during the period September 14, 1949, through October 17, 1949.

Senator Mansfield said, however, that he and his wife are certain that they did not use counterpart funds for personal purchases of any kind while on their trip to Europe in 1949.

The foregoing information is also being furnished to the Acting Attorney General.

Sincerely yours,

NOTE: The initial investigation of this allegation was limited to review of appropriate records in accordance with request of the Criminal Division. No records were found which would show whether counterpart funds had been used by Senator Mansfield while on the European trip. On 12/29/64 Criminal Division requested appropriate interview of Mansfield concerning this matter. The Acting Attorney General is also being advised.
